English

Course is endorsable

Year : 13

Course : English 301

Mr M Edgecombe

Total Credits : 22

This course is designed to prepare students for university studies. A high reading level is required. In particular, students will learn how to "respond critically" to texts. This means being aware of the different possible ways of interpreting texts, and understanding how texts contribute to the way societies think about real issues and real problems. Students need to become alert to the nuances of words, aspects of cinematography and other devices employed by text creators. They also need to demonstrate this alertness in the choices they make in their own writing.
